SOT Arif Hussain, Chief Economist and Deputy Director WFP (English)

"We are talking about conflict, climate and economic marginalization. The unfortunate part is that it is one more year of the same story. So people who were marginalized, who were destitute last year, are even more destitute this year. And they are completely, totally in many many places, particularly in conflict places, they are reliant on food assistance."

DR Congo: Conflict and hunger fuel one another in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC). Insecurity spread across several provinces is the main driver to population displacements, which often leads to hunger. The number of food-insecure people almost doubled from 7.7 million in 2017 to 13.1 million in 2018. To make matters worse, it is also facing the second largest and deadliest Ebola Virus Disease (EVD) outbreak globally

Shot: 19 Feb 2019

02:16-02:36

External shots of the Ebola Treatment Centre (ETC). Shots of people washing their hands, having their temperature taken and spraying shoes with antiseptic before entering the ETC.

Shots of the isolation cubicles used to treat suspected and confirmed Ebola cases.
Recovering patients have a restricted open space they can use.

Beni, North Kivu (DRC)

Shot: 19 Feb 2019

02:36-02:51

Shots of WFP food distribution to Ebola contacts. Every Ebola case has contact with roughly 50 people. Food distribution is an incentive for some contacts who are otherwise hiding, to come forward and also a way to trace and register the contacts and also keep them at home and fed during the 21 days of the incubation period, which is the time needed to know if a person is infected.
