A World Food Programme (WFP) humanitarian vessel carrying life-saving food, medical supplies, doctors and other relief items reached Misrata port on 8 April 2011, opening up a new humanitarian lifeline to civilians trapped in the Libyan conflict.

The WFP-chartered vessel docked in Misrata carrying more than 600 metric tons of WFP food including wheat flour, vegetable oil and High Energy Biscuits – enough to feed more than 40,000 people for a month. The ship also delivered medical supplies on behalf of UNICEF and the World Health Organization (WHO).

WFP began moving food supplies into Libya soon after the conflict erupted and has pre-positioned more than 17,000 metric tons of food stocks inside the country and across the region, as part of a US$42 million emergency operation that will provide food assistance to more than 1 million people in Libya and neighbouring countries. Working with partners such as the Libyan Red Crescent, WFP plans to provide food to more than 600,000 people inside Libya over the next three months.

As the lead logistics and telecommunications agency in the UN humanitarian system, WFP is providing transport and communications support for the entire humanitarian community in Libya.
